CHEERED LONG AND LOUD TODAY

When the Portrait of Prof.
David Graham Was Placed in Position

HIS GIFT TO THE SCHOOL

Appropriate Exercises Marks the Presentation—Statue of Minerva Also Presented

There was a soul-inspiring scene at the Graham high school this morning when that grand old patriarch, after whom the school was named, Prof. David Graham, presented a portrait of himself to the school, to be placed in the assembly room. That the gift was highly appreciated by the pupils, who dearly love the grand old man, was evidenced by their loud and continued cheering when it was unveiled and placed upon an easel.

Since the Creator, in his divine wisdom, has seen fit to send out in every age and clime, a few men of the David Graham type, whose very lives are an inspiration and whose every act is an example worthy of emulation by all men.

One would really have to be present to fully appreciate the scene of the good, old silver-haired educator, whose candle of life is fast nearing the end, smiling, laughing and talking, with his heart full of joy, and in spite of his years, and his position of standing looking out the Western window of life, he had a cheerful smile playing on his countenance and a cheery and encouraging word for the pupils.

Prof. Graham spoke touchingly and with much feeling, reviewing briefly his affiliation with the schools of Rushville for many, many years, but the burden of his remarks was along the line of "Be cheerful; keep smiling." He declared with a chuckle, that laughing produced handsome people, and he said he once knew a minister's wife, who on first sight, was about the ugliest mortal he ever saw, but once you became acquainted with her, her pleasant manner and habitual smile found its place down deep into your heart, and the woman grew into a beautiful matron.

Prof. J. H. Scholl presided and conducted the exercises. The "Girls Glee Club" sang at the opening of the program. Another important and appreciative part of the exercises was the presentation of a life-size statue of Minerva, the goddess of Wisdom, to the high school by the "graduating class of '07. Ralph Stiffler, class president, made the presentation speech, and was heartily applauded.

Prof. A. F. Stewart, a former teacher in the high school, and now a professor of Latin in the Monmouth College, made a short address on behalf of the former teachers of the school.

Gates Sexton, president of the school board, delivered the speech of acceptance, following the placing in position of the Graham portrait. He said, as a member of the board, he journeyed to several cities when the building of a new high school was contemplated, and on seeing many of the buildings named after illustrious men of national fame it struck him as being a clever idea to name the new building after a man who was near and dear to everyone in Rushville, and who had done more along educational lines than any other man, so the magnificent new building was happily and appropriately called the Graham High School.

Rev. W. H. Clark asked the divine blessing and closing the impressive exercises the entire assemblage recited in concert the Lord's prayer.

Many visitors were present, including the former pupils who are now attending college, and members of the school board.

DRAMATIC WAS THE DISCOURSE

Dr. Tevis Displays Wonderful
Versatility and Dramatic Power in Sermon

AUDITORS ARE SPELLBOUND

When the Pastor Told the Story of Belshazzar and His Drunken Feast

One of the most impressive, and by great odds, the most dramatic sermon ever delivered in a Rushville church, was the story of Belshazzar, from the Book of Daniel, told in sermon form by Dr. V. W. Tevis, at St. Paul's M. E. church last night.

To begin with, the story, as the pastor declared, is one of the most intense and dramatic in the Bible. As he read it, using that powerful dramatic force and versatility which he possesses, his auditors were spell-bound throughout.

The pastor then interpolated a bit of history regarding the wicked King, and his ignominious death as prophesied by Daniel, after he read the handwriting on the wall.

Dr. Tevis drew from the story that God is always personally interested in anything that has to do with his children, as the father of a flaxen haired child is interested in her dolls and toys, because the child is interested.

The divine declared that a worldly man has no interest in a Christian; neither is he ever interested in a preacher unless he wants to be married, buried or to "get" religion.

Dr. Tevis made a clear and comprehensive analysis of Belshazzar's case, comparing it to the career of the worldly man of today, who forgets God, and dies outside the pale of Christianity.

Some of the pointed remarks employed by the pastor during his discourse follow:

"How brave some men are when the band is playing."

"Have we disregarded God? Beware! We can go on but so long a time until a halt is suddenly called."

"When we are weighed in the balance, will we be found wanting?"

"We may forget the virtues of the members of the family tree, but we never forget the doings of a blacksheep of the family."

"Every true Christian has absolute confidence in God and His word."

"Some think the political parties are responsible for a panic every once in a while, but I think it is God's will to wake up a nation to the realization that it is not so powerful after all, and dependent on another and stronger power."

"I would score Roosevelt with all the power of my voice, did he act as Belshazzar, celebrating with a drunken feast with concubines and harlots."

The revival meetings are attracting large crowds nightly and the choir will render special music at all the meetings this week.

Shelton is president of the institute and Sylvester Hodge, secretary. $100 For Charity

The Republican Company will gladly donate $100 to any local charitable organization if it cannot prove the largest Daily Circulation any local newspaper ever enjoyed.

We know to a paper how many others print. And if they don't know our circulation, they ought to, and knowing it should likewise know enough to refrain from making boasts, which savor of the unsophisticated, novice and amateur, a "LAUGHING STOCK" company.

We are speaking of the circulation of our daily newspaper, not a weekly, for we do not publish a weekly; for that matter, some of our merchants could boast of a large circulation of their wrapping paper.

We are also offering for sale a rubber stamp outfit, which will be found useful in making a clever reproduction of everything we do.

And don't forget the $100 for Charity. Does anyone wish to take the initiative? It's a sweet word—Charity.

OLD MAN SHOT FARMER'S HOGS

John Ebbing, of Near Gowdy,
Said to Have Strange
Mania

ONCE SHOT A HORSE

But Came to Grief Saturday When
Robert Cameron Gave Him a
Troughing

The denizens of Gowdy are telling the story of the strange actions of an old man in that neighborhood, John Ebbing, who seems to have a mania for shooting and crippling the live stock of his neighborhood.

Of numerous occasions, and without any cause whatever, it is said that Ebbing would shoulder a gun and quietly steal upon an adjoining farm, firing at and crippling hogs, cattle and horses, proving a menace to the farmers of that community. Recently he is said to have shot a neighbor's horse.

But Saturday Ebbing came to grief. It is said that Robert Cameron, who lives northwest of Gowdy, saw the old man shoot and cripple some of his hogs which were grazing along the roadside. He rushed upon the man, demanding an explanation. An altercation followed and the affair resulted in a fist encounter, it is said, in which the "man with a mania" came out second best.

THE FUNERAL SERVICES WERE LARGELY ATTENDED

Large Family of Mrs. Sarah M.
Smith Have Lived in Harmony.

The funeral services of Mrs. Sarah M. Smith were largely attended Sunday afternoon. Deceased was the mother of eleven children, nine of whom survive her. All were present at funeral, together with their families, which numbered forty-one. The Smith family has been an exception to the rule for notwithstanding the large number of children, harmony and the best of feeling has always existed among them.

IMPRISONED IN FOREIGN LAND

Cousin of Ira Ayres Held in Spanish Prison On Trumped up Charge

HAS FORTUNE ON OUTSIDE

Says He Has Large Sum of English Money Secreted in a House Nearby

Languishing in prison in a foreign land with a fortune awaiting him on the outside, is the situation in which a relative of Ira Ayres finds himself at present. Mr. Ayres has received a letter from the husband of his cousin saying that he is held in a prison in Spain on a merely technical charge of which he is unable to clear himself.

After describing the sorry lot which he is in, the unfortunate man says in his letter to Mr. Ayres that he has a fortune awaiting him. The sum of money, 29,000 pounds, English money, which is all in gold, is secreted in a house near the place of his imprisonment. He is friendless in a foreign land with no means of righting himself with the Spanish authorities.

The imprisoned man married Mr. Ayres' cousin, a Miss Mary Ayres. He went to Spain and engaged in business and was doing well when he was lodged in jail on the hatched up charge.

Mr. Ayres will make an investigation of his relative's case and do all in his power to help the imprisoned man to liberty.

RABBIT BLOOD STORY TRUE

President Henry of the I. & C.,
Writes Letters to the Heroes of Big Williams Creek

There are two young men living in or near Connersville who have reason to feel justly proud in the recognition they have received for doing a manly act. These are William Traylor and Fred Meyer. They are the young men who gave warning at Williams creek of the cave-in recently. The trusty story of the rabbit's blood is that one dyed his handkerchief with the blood of a rabbit he had killed and the other had a red handkerchief.

Charles L. Henry, president and general manager of the I. & C. Traction company, has sent to the young men who flagged the west-bound Connersville Dispatch, December 28th, 1907, at Big Williams creek landslide, the following letters:

January 1st, 1908.
Mr. William Traylor, Connersville Ind.

My dear Mr. Traylor:—Our car men have reported the earnest efforts made by you and your kind friend Mr. Fred Meyer, to stop the west-bound Connersville Dispatch at the time of the landslide on our grade at Big Williams creek on December 28th, 1907.

Your conduct on that occasion shows such manly qualities that on the part of the company, I take the pleasure in enclosing a five dollar gold piece, and beg you to accept the same as an evidence of our appreciation of your conduct.

Hoping as you grow into manhood your character will develop and strengthen along the lines indicated by your act on the occasion referred to, I am, Respectfully,

CHALRES L. HENRY.
(The letter to Mr. Meyer is an exact counterpart to the one above).

SCARE STORY OF KIDNAPPED TOLD

City Marshal Price Does the "Hot-Foot" After an Alleged Kidnapper

FOUND IN AN ALLEY

Was Man From Greensburg With a Ten-Year-Old Boy, But Explains His Actions

About eight o'clock Saturday night a group of boys came running up to City Marshal Price and between short breaths apprised the officer that a "great, big, ugly man" had kidnapped one of their crowd, a young boy named Taylor and had taken him up the alley north of the fire engine house. The officer lost no time in reaching the place, with the crowd of boys following at his heels—but at a safe distance should anything occur.

Officer Price found the man with the boy in a secluded corner of the alley, and after a rapid fire of questions, it developed that the fellow was merely sending a verbal message to the boy's sister, preliminary to arranging a "date." He said he was from Greensburg.

A large crowd which had gathered at the head of the alley, dispersed in disgust.

EDITOR'S WIFE IS DANGEROUSLY ILL

Former Rush County Girl Lies in Critical Condition in Dayton Hospital

Mrs. C. C. Lyon, wife of the former editor of the Shelbyville Republican, and staff representative of the Indianapolis Star, is in a critical condition at a hospital at Dayton, Ohio, to which city Mr. and Mrs. Lyon moved recently.

At the approach of child birth it became imperative to take Mrs. Lyon to the hospital.

Saturday for ten hours she was under the care of four surgeons, the services of four nurses also being necessary at the bedside. The long, dangerous and difficult operation resulted in the child being dead when born. Mrs. Lyon is not expected to recover.

Mrs. Lyon formerly lived near Andersonville in Rush county.

Superintendent George H. Davis, of the Co-Operative Telephone company, met with a very painful accident this morning, which resulted in him losing one of his fingers.

Mr. Davis was repairing the gas engine, which is used at the new plant, and while the engine was running, in some manner he got the middle finger of his left hand caught between the piston rod and the cylinder and the finger was cut off at the first joint. Dr. Frank Green dressed the injured member.

PLENTY OF WORK

Congress Has No Excuse For Idleness In the Days
Just Ahead.

WITH A CRUSH OF BILLS

Presented For Consideration at Once
Both Houses Will Have Plenty
To Occupy Their Time.

The Distribution of the President's Message the First Thing to Be Considered in House.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Both the senate and the house resumed their sittings at noon today, and while comparatively little in the way of actual legislation is expected this week, they began preparations for real work. The committees will now begin work in earnest, and with a crush of bills for consideration promised at once, both houses will have plenty to occupy them the remainder of the session.

The Tillman resolution on the financial situation still lies upon the table in the senate and is available as a subject of discussion. The indication is, however, that discussion of the financial situation in the senate will be postponed until a bill on that subject has been reported from the committee on finance, which it is believed will soon take place. The senate will adjourn for the day immediately after meeting on Monday out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Mallory of Florida, whose death has occurred since the holiday adjournment. Mr. Mallory's successor, Hon. W. F. Bryan, is expected to be sworn in early this week. Resolutions of inquiry relative to the conditions in the navy which led to the resignation of Rear Admiral Brownson as chief of the bureau of navigation are among the probabilities, but as Senator Hale, chairman of the naval committee, has stated that he would not present any inquiry of this character, his failure to act is regarded by many as quite clear indication that the senate will not undertake to enter upon any investigation at this time.

A meeting of the house committee on ways and means has been called for today to consider the president's message with the view to reporting a plan for its distribution among the various house committees and if a quorum is obtained such a report will be made at once. It depends upon this report whether the house will have any business before it at the beginning of its session. In the past members have taken advantage of this report to make political and other speeches for the "good of the union," and it is probable that some will follow the custom this year.

Both houses will adjourn on Thursday until the following Monday.

To Draw for Rooms.

A unique feature of the week's proceeding in the house of representatives will be the assignment to members by lottery of rooms in the $3,000,000 house office building, now about completed. The drawing will be held on Thursday, Jan. 9, immediately after the reading of the journal. Three hundred and thirty-three marbles, consecutively numbered from "1" up, will be placed in a box and as each in turn is drawn out by a blindfolded page and handed to the reading clerk, its number will be announced. The member whose number on a prepared list corresponds with that on the marble will come forward to the desk and select by diagram a room from among the 397 offices into which the first, second and third floors of the building are principally divided.

That only 333 of the 396 members of the house will participate in the drawing is chiefly accounted for by the fact that chairmen of committees are not entitled to private offices in the new building, but instead will use the rooms set aside for their respective committees. Until now representatives maintaining private offices in Washington have had to pay for them out of their own pockets, and these offices have been widely scattered over the business section of the city. The completion of the house office building relieves this necessity. The 397 office rooms thus provided by congressional appropriation are free to members. A subway to be equipped with a miniature railway for rapid transit connects the new building with the capitol.

Will Investigate "Night Riders."
Fargo, N. D., Jan. 6.—James Holen of this city, a member of the national executive committee of the American Society of Equity, left last night for Indianapolis, where a special meeting of the executive committee will be held to consider the recent depredations in Tennessee and Kentucky by "night riders." Mr. Holen said that if it is shown that the "night riders" are members of the society, he will introduce a resolution at the meeting of the executive committee demanding that they be expelled.

Demands One Franc Damages.
Paris, Jan. 6.—In fulfillment of his intention announced on Friday, Prince Helle de Sagan has filed suit on the ground of assault against Count Boni de Castellane in the criminal court, asking one franc damages. The action will be taken up before the court on Jan. 21.

RENT RIOTS

New York's Eastside Stirred in War Against Landlords.

New York, Jan. 6.—Incipient rent riots broke out on the Eastside Sunday as a result of the tension between the landlords and the striking tenants, and before the disorders were quelled by police reserves, many combatants were injured and five were arrested. The police used their clubs freely, but there was no way to obtain the number of injured, as they were hurried away and cared for by friends. The disorders were general throughout the affected district.

The most serious trouble occurred on East Eleventh street, where a landlord who had been unable to collect rent ordered his tenants to remove the American and Socialistic flags with which the strikers had decorated the tenement. The landlord was hooted and jeered by the tenants and other strikers who were holding a mass meeting in the house, and he called the police. The striking tenants resented the appearance of the officers and in the clash that followed the reserves used their night-sticks vigorously. Five protesting tenants, somewhat battered, were arrested. The offending decorations were removed.

Hardly had order been restored at this point when the police reserves were hurried to East Twelfth street, where striking tenants were making a demonstration against a landlord who had objected to the flying of red flags over his property. The crowd failed to obey the police order to disperse, and was set upon with night-sticks. One woman, it is reported, was rendered insensible during the fight, in which wives and daughters as well as fathers and sons, participated. The police tried to gain entrance into the tenement, but the strikers barricaded the doors, and a semblance of order having been restored, the officers withdrew. Ambulances were summoned to care for the injured, but the strikers declined to admit the physicians, stating that they would call their own doctors.

There were several other outbreaks which were checked by the police, and all during the day the teeming Eastside swarmed into the streets and held impromptu meetings. There were many altercations between landlords and tenants, and the reserves of four precincts were kept in readiness to respond to hurry calls.

Several mass meetings were held last night by the strikers. It was announced at the headquarters of the strikers that the organizing of the tenants in Brooklyn and Jersey City was going on rapidly and that by the first of February over 50,000 tenants in those cities would be ready to enforce their demands for lower rents.

AN OBJECT LESSON

The President Seeks to Impress Comparison on Army.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Thirteen photographs from life, illustrative of hair-raising exploits in horsemanship, form the unique exhibit sent to congress by direction of the president to accompany recommendations from himself and the chief of staff for the betterment of army riding. These pictures are intended to show how far ahead of American military men are European horsemen in the art of equitation. One of the most thrilling pictures represents an Italian cavalryman riding over a twenty-foot perpendicular cliff, the photographs being taken in series to illustrate the sagacity of the horse and the skill of the rider in maintaining a poise within the center of gravity in different stages of the descent. There are pictures of German student officers apparently leaping from hill to hill; of fat majors and lieutenant colonels of the same nationality wallowing through bogs and swamps and over hedges; French cavalry riding; the famous drag hunt of the German army, and stirring pictures of the bounds in full cry on boar hunts.

The official correspondence with these pictures consists of a letter from the president to the secretary of war, Dec. 3 last, requesting him to secure legislation to make infantry captains mounted officers and establish remount depots, saying "both of these measures are essential to the improvement of horsemanship in the army."

Mysterious Dynamiting.

Sullivan, Ind., Jan. 6.—By an explosion of dynamite which had been placed under the front porch, the entire front end of the home of Mrs. Mattie Brown was blown away. In the front room of the little home at the time of the explosion were Mrs. Brown, her daughter, Mrs. Wash Deckard and baby, and Mr. Clippinger. All the occupants of the house were buried under the debris and received bruises and cuts, but their injuries are only slight. A month ago the home of Mrs. Deckard was burned by a fire thought to be incendiary. Bloodhounds were put to work on the case, but so many people visited the scene of the explosion that the dogs were of no use.

Recalls the Seeley Dinner.

New York, Jan. 6.—Catherine Devine, known on the burlesque stage as "Little Egypt," and who, according to her friends, was one of the dancers at the Seeley dinner at Sherry's which was raided by the police some years ago, was found dead in her apartment under somewhat mysterious circumstances Sunday. The body lay in bed and bore several bruises. It is thought possible, however, that death was due to natural causes. The police are investigating.

THE BROWNSON INCIDENT

Is Made the Occasion For Delivering a Lecture on Personal Pique and Wounded Vanity.

The Sensational Exploitation of the Defects in the Navy Rebuked in Scathing Terms.

Washington, Jan. 6.—President Roosevelt's attitude on the question of the command of hospital ships in the navy at sea, which resulted in the resignation of Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson and incidentally some caustic observations on that incident and the controversy among the naval officers and their adherents as to details of naval construction and methods of training were made known Sunday when Secretary Metcalf gave to the press two letters from the president, addressed to him on these subjects.

In the first of these letters President Roosevelt without mincing words, condemns in unmeasured terms the act of Admiral Brownson, declaring it to be unseemly and improper. The question as to which Admiral Brownson took issue with the navy department, the president declares, is one as to which there can be entirely legitimate differences of opinion, but he adds, "there is no room for difference of opinion as to the gross impropriety of the admiral's conduct in resigning sooner than carry out the orders of his superior officers in such a matter. The officers of the navy must remember that it is not merely childish, but in the highest degree reprehensible to permit either personal pique, wounded vanity or factional feeling on behalf of some particular bureau or organization, to render them disloyal to the interests of the navy and therefore of the country as a whole."

Regarding the controversies in the navy, the president admits there always are and always will be defects to correct, both in the construction of ships and in the organization of the department, and in the actual drill of the fleet. It is well, he says, that these defects be pointed out, but it is also well that they should be pointed out without hysterical exaggeration or malicious untruthfulness. He scathingly rebukes those guilty of exploiting them in grossly exaggerated form in the fancied interest of an individual or clique of individuals or for the sake of supplying sensational matter to newspapers. Because of so much misrepresentation and exaggeration, the president has asked Secretary Metcalf for a statement as to the exact facts concerning which there has been disputes, desiring particularly the opinion of Admiral Converse, formerly chief of the navigation bureau, who because of his high professional attainments and standard of conduct, the president considers peculiarly fitted to give judgment.

Admiral Brownson was shown the president's letter and asked if in view of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt's side of the subject had been stated in these communications he would not feel at liberty to say something in his own behalf. "Not a word," was his prompt reply, and this attitude he maintained to all inquiries for his views. The admiral has consistently declined to say anything for publication in the whole matter.

Accompanied by a friend, Admiral Brownson left Washington Sunday afternoon for a trip to South Carolina, where he expects to indulge in duck shooting for the next week or ten days.

Chicagoans Want Lower Rent.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Five hundred residents of Chicago's ghetto formed last night a tenants' union with the avowed purpose of forcing landlords of the district to reduce rents $2 a month. Leaders of the movement advised the members of the new organization to refuse to pay the present rent rates, which were declared exorbitant, and to force the landlords to take all legal steps and pay all court costs in case the latter refuse to meet the demands for lower prices. The movement will be modeled after that in New York. It is the hope of its leaders that it may spread to laboring classes throughout the city.

Powers Case Ended in Mistrial.

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 6.—Judge Morris, after becoming convinced that it was impossible for the jury in the Powers case to reach an agreement, sent for the jury. After asking the twelve if there was any possibility of reaching a verdict, and receiving an answer that they were hopelessly divided, Judge Morris expressed his regret and discharged the jury. The court set Monday, July 6, as the date for the next trial.

Pettibone Acquitted.

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 6.—George Pettibone, charged with conspiracy in the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, was found not guilty by the jury. Pettibone was released as soon as the verdict was read. He was immediately sent to a hospital, he being seriously ill.

THE THAW CASE

Second Hearing Has Begun in New York Supreme Court.

New York, Jan. 6.—The second trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White began today before Judge Victor Dowling of the supreme court. By order of the court women are barred from the courtroom, and everything will be done during the progress of the trial to prevent the unseemly scramble for seats that marked the previous trial. Profiting

JUDGE VICTOR J. DOWLING.

By the experience of the first trial, it is thought that the selection of a jury will not take so much time as was consumed in the former hearing. There also comes the report that District Attorney Jerome may attempt this time to bar the testimony of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, wife of the accused man. At the first trial this testimony was allowed to go before the jury with the consent of the district attorney, who said the precedent set in the case of the state against Wood seemed to cover the matter. Several criminal lawyers of prominence in their profession have argued the point with Mr. Jerome since the close of the first hearing and have urged him to oppose this line of testimony at the trial about to begin. These attorneys declare a vital principle of law is involved and that it should go to the highest courts for determination. Mr. Jerome has given no definite answer to his fellow members of the bar, and he may feel impelled to consent to another recital of Mrs. Thaw's story to prevent an appearance of inconsistency with his course of a year ago. But the representations made to him as to the importance to the community at large of testing the legality of such testimony have been unusually strong and many of the prosecuting officer's closest friends would not be surprised if he should rise in his place when Mrs. Thaw is called as a witness and contend against the admissibility of her testimony.

Thaw's attorneys will base their defense solely upon the ground that Thaw was legally insane at the time he shot Stanford White and that he has since recovered his mental balance. They say their client is ready and willing to stand any test that can be devised as to his present mental condition, and believe he will make an even better showing then before the commission which, during the first trial, declared him capable of intelligently advising with his counsel and of understanding the nature of the proceedings against him.

WOMEN'S WOES

Rushville Women are Finding Relief at Last

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. B. W. Reynolds, 620 W. Fifth Street, Rushville, Ind., says:

"I had a constant backache that robbed me of energy and enjoyment. Frequent headaches added to my unhappiness and I was always tired but could not rest at night. Although I used several remedies, I did not get better but steadily grew worse. I read statements of people whom Doan's Kidney Pills had helped and my husband got me a box at F. B. Johnson & Company's drug store. Since using them, I have been free from backache and all kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

THE SHOEMAKER'S ART.

It Has Been Known Since the Earliest Days of Civilization.

A few winters ago I passed a day among the wonderfully decorated tombs in the cemetery of what was once Memphis, upon the western bank of the Nile, writes Julius Chambers in the Brooklyn Eagle. One of the show places is the remarkable underground palace that the illustrious Queen Ti of the fifth dynasty (i. e., about 4500 years ago) constructed for her final resting place. It consists of a great court 40 by 60 feet, as I remember, and several other apartments, besides the mummy chamber, which is reached by a stairway leading down from the largest room. Upon the walls of this tomb are the best preserved pictures to be found in all Egypt, and among them are the figures of two artisans working upon coverings for the feet.

Therefore, makers of shoes, I salute you! More than 4,000 years before the art of printing had practical existence, although you will admit that the decorator of Queen Ti's tomb was almost a publisher, your art was recognized, respected and immortalized.

The natural impulse of mankind is to go barefoot. Every reader can remember youthful days in which the greatest possible pleasure was embodied in a run through the woods or along the shore unshod. Very well can I recall the secret spot in the barn in which I was wont to hide my shoes and stockings in order that I might be in the competition for the first stone bruise of the summer. That was the primitive man, speaking up for the faraway days "before we were women and men."

AN OLD TIME ASCENT.

London's First Balloon and the Great Excitement It Raised.

Tremendous excitement was caused when London's first balloon went up. The balloon, manned by a young Italian named Vincent Lunardi, ascended from Moorfields, then an open space of ground, on Sept. 15, 1784, in the presence of more than 100,000 spectators. All business was suspended, the king himself setting the example by adjourning a cabinet council that happened to be sitting. Vast crowds followed the balloon's course, some on horseback, in carts, in chaises, but mostly on foot. The Great North road, above which the aeronaut sailed for some distance, was a roaring river of humanity.

Many were hurt in the crush, but the only fatality recorded was the death from fright of an old country woman, who, coming out of her cottage to see what the excitement was about, beheld the balloon just above her head. On the other hand, Lunardi undoubtedly saved one man's life, a jury bringing in a verdict of not guilty on a notorious highwayman in order that they, the prisoner and the judge who was trying the case might rush out of court to see the balloon.

The aeronaut descended eventually near Ware, in Hertfordshire, where his sudden drop from the clouds was the cause of more astonishment and excitement. Many of the spectators swooned with fear, while others urged the putting of Lunardi to death there and then on the ground that he must needs be a sorcerer and in league with the evil one.

Small Necked New Yorkers.

Statistics furnished by manufacturers of shirts and collars indicate that the average New York man has a smaller neck than his out of town brother. Comparison of orders shows that out of a given volume of business booked Boston and Chicago led in the matter of big sizes. Inquiry at several haberdashery shops in Manhattan resulted in the information that any number larger than sixteen and a half would have to be specially called for from the factory or had through the selling agent. In other cities it is an everyday experience to sell as high as size eighteen over the retail counter. Of course the element of snug fit is a factor, but as a regular proposition eastern and western men are more "bull necked" than is the case with their New York brethren.—New York Press.

Dried Elderberry Leaves In Asthma.

"If you will gather leaves from an elderberry bush when they are green and let them dry and then put them into a pillow and sleep upon them nightly for about three months," said a Petersburg (Tenn.) man, "they will cure the worst case of asthma. After they are dried the leaves have a peculiar but pleasing odor. By inhaling this odor the asthma is cured. I know a number of people who cured themselves of asthma by sleeping on dried elderberry leaves."—Nashville Tennessean.

Heaven's Secrets.

The following is a true story, vouched for by a correspondent: Her little boy of seven years of age said to her one day: "Mother, I know why it is that babies cannot speak until they are twelve months old. It is because they come straight from heaven, and if they were able to talk as soon as they were born they would tell the secrets, and so God doesn't let them speak until they have almost forgotten them."—London Methodist Times.

Martinsville, Ind., Jan. 6.—The temperance forces succeeded in filing a remonstrance in the First ward, backed by nearly fifty majority, the largest majority ever attached to any remonstrance in any ward in this city. The saloon men have always regarded a remonstrance in the First ward as an impossible thing. But this time the temperance forces were able to enlist a number of the manufacturers in the ward and after the movement was once started, with a little enthusiasm back of it, a majority remonstrance was obtained with comparative ease. All the saloons of the city are in the First ward, as remonstrances for the second time have been filed in both the Second and Third wards.

The straightout Democratic and Republican papers over the State are printing the law on the question of legal publications by county, township and municipal officers where the law says that the publications shall be made in two papers representing the two parties that cast the largest vote at the preceding election. This means that the Democratic and Republican papers are entitled to this patronage, and the boys are demanding that officers deliver the goods. In other words the men who make the fights for their parties are tired of seeing "independent" papers, who slide through campaigns with water on both shoulders, step up to the pie counter after the battle is over and demand and receive the fruits of the victory. Like Oliver Twist, the editors of these "independent" papers always have their plates up for more, and they generally get it. The editors of the party papers think the time has come when a halt should be called and now is the time. If a man desires to run an "independent" paper that is his privilege, but he should not pose as a Democrat to Democrats and as a Republican to Republicans just for what he gets out of it in the way of legal advertising. —Greensburg Review.

A few days ago the Republican printed the law referred to above and called particular attention to the clause where it says that legal notices shall be published in the leading party papers. The Republican endorses every word of what the Review says. Independent Republican and Democratic papers not alone carry water on both shoulders, but they usually cater to all the elements in sight, and have departments for the Prohibition, the Socialist and other parties, and I doing so they make votes for those parties. Hence the "kick" by straightout party papers. They are tired of seeing those papers being given part of the patronage which should go to them.

The riotous and lawless element at Muncie has been overawed by the troops. But, will not the riot be repeated as soon as the troops are withdrawn? This is usually the case, especially when the strikers have the sympathy of the community, which seems to be the case in Muncie. Muncie is union-ridden, and everybody is afraid.

Strict and prompt enforcement of the law would prevent all strikes from becoming lawless riots. Employees have a right to strike and quit work. But there is where it ends. They have no right to forcibly interfere with the employers in their endeavor to continue running their business the best way they can. The law should protect them in this to the utmost. In the Muncie case, the street railway company and the union of the employees had an agreement, which expired January 1st. The conditions of this agreement seemed to have been such that the company was willing to lose thousands of dollars rather than renew it. That this was the case was the fault of the union. Had they worked in harmony and to the interest of their employers—which they should have done—the latter would have been glad to renew the agreement. But since the street car company has seen fit to refuse the renewal there is no law in this land that can compel them. They have the constitutional right to conduct their business as they see fit, the same as any other business man or individual. As long as public peace officers and courts hob-nob with the unions and the lawless elements and are half-hearted in enforcing the law, that long strikes will turn into riots and human life and property will be at jeopardy.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER
Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 6.—Captain Harry S. New, chairman of the Republican national committee, has begun an active canvass for re-election as member of that body from this state. He is laying his lines with military precision and, while the outcome is very much in doubt, he is plunging into the race as if there was no such thing as defeat. The fact that there will be a national committeeman to elect has been almost overlooked by the party workers whose interest is being held by the race for governor, plans for the reorganization and for the election of delegates to the national convention. It is not generally known that Captain New is a candidate. There have been rumors now and then that he would retire from the committee unless some candidate friendly to him might be nominated for president and insist on his continuing as chairman. Captain New, however, has not been talking about his future until within the last few days, and then only with his very intimate friends.

It is believed the Eighth district Democratic leaders have reached an agreement on their program for the coming campaign. McCullough is to be their candidate for governor and Judge R. K. Erwin of Decatur will retire from the race. He will have their support for permanent chairman of the state convention. Congressman J. A. M. Adair of Portland will be a candidate for renomination and will not enter the race for governor. With the solid support of his district, they figure that McCullough will be a very strong factor in the contest for the nomination for governor. The field promises to be large, as the Sixth district has endorsed Rev. Thomas Kuhn of Richmond; the Ninth has endorsed Samuel Ralston of Lebanon, and the Twelfth, Thomas R. Marshall of Columbia City. The Fourth will back Senator L. Ert Slack of Franklin. There will be at least five candidates at the start, and probably two more.

Figures compiled at the office of the secretary of state show the extent to which, under the new laws, reports have been filed by corporations organized under Indiana laws and the extent of the state revenue derived therefrom. Up to Jan. 1, according to Frank I. Grubbs, deputy secretary of state, 5,131 reports were filed, upon each of which a fee of 50 cents was paid, yielding a revenue of $2,565.50. "In addition," said Mr. Grubbs, "$1,055.50 has been added to the state's revenues as fees collected from such corporations as had changed their names, increased capital stock, issued preferred stock or engaged in some other transaction requiring a fee to the state, and which had been overlooked prior to the enactment of the new report law. Matters involving several hundred dollars in additional fees are still pending, and will be adjusted by the department."

Gus S. Condo, an attorney of Marion, who has served two terms in the state legislature, announces that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative in congress from the Eleventh district. In making his announcement he gave a few statements on his attitude on various questions. He says if he is nominated and elected he will give patrons of each postoffice an opportunity to select the postmaster. He pledges himself to support an amendment to the constitution for the election of United States senators by direct vote. He also declares for a readjustment of the tariff, and he says he will support currency legislation. During the last session of the legislature Mr. Condo was chairman of the ways and means committee, and was house leader. He was at the back of a bill for the abolition of capital punishment. This bill, however, failed.

CURRENT COMMENT

The National Idea.
More power for the national government and complete control from Washington of the great commercial and industrial forces of the country was the pith in a speech by Dr. Eliot of Harvard university before the National Civic federation at its recent annual convention in New York. Dr. Eliot said he represented the "consumer," who felt the full effect of the industrial warfare which the Civic federation was organized to prevent—in other words, that public which always pays the cost of industrial warfare. He advocated not only government control of commercial associations, in which he included labor and capital, but government incorporation of corporations. A central power alone can settle the vexing questions of the day, and in order to do that it must have more power and wider scope. To quote further:

We shall look for an increase in the powers of the federal government in all directions. It goes against our cherished fetish of local government, but we desperately need a revision of our views of local representation. Local interests have changed utterly in fifty years. We must give up our fear of increasing the government's power. Every question that is uppermost today arose half a century after the constitution was made.

The federal government is trying to get new powers. How? By a stretching process. Some of our experiments have done pretty well, considering our limitation, but we have much further to go. In saying that "local interests have become continental interests," the speaker fairly gauged the necessities of our time. The tendencies of the people seem to be toward a deeper reliance upon the federal power. Both labor and capital, the corporations and the public look upon it as the umpire and arbiter for disputes and the last resort when forced to the wall. This is the paternal idea, and it is not a new phase of political thought, but the rarity of criticism and jealousy of its rapid spread in recent years are noticeable and suggestive.

MRS. CYNTHIA W. ALDEN'S LIFE OF USEFULNESS

IF individual greatness be measured by the degree of one's unselfish helpfulness to the world, Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, President-General of the International Sunshine Society, and one of the best known club women in America, deserves high place on the roll of contemporary fame. As a motherless child of four she was taken by her father, Oliver S. Westover, an expert mineralogist, from their home in Iowa to the wild pioneer life of Colorado. There, as she grew up, she rode and hunted with her father, studied under his loving tutelage, geology and history and the broader teachings of Nature, in the great wild open-air school, where she handled a rifle, a lariat, and the bow and arrow at about the age when girls have hardly put aside their dolls. Those were dangerous days when she and her father seven times made the trip over the Rockies, where savage Indians hiding in the tall grass or behind rocks in the passes, made life a terror to the whites. She had heroic courage and a hunger to help humanity, which she now reveals in simpler and more conventional ways. She crawled through the grass to bathe and bind the wounds of their driver who had been scalped by the Indians; saved a miner from lynching by stepping bravely between the victim and an angry mob; was lowered over a precipice to bring up the dead body of a child; threw herself on a lighted lamp that had been dropped near gunpowder; killed a black bear that attacked her; kept a pack of fierce coyotes at bay with a stick in her hand and rescued a number of snow-bound miners. At seventeen she was managing a district school at Boulder, Colorado, and shortly afterward graduated from the State University. She sang for some years as a church soprano in New York and later acted as inspector of customs where her fluency in German, Italian, French and Spanish proved of great value as they also did in her splendid work in journalism and many other lines of activity. Her Sunshine Society with more than 200,000 members all over the world, is devoted to spreading sweetness and sunshine, to making the world day by day happier and brighter by acts of kindness and love. It makes Christianity practical, not an occasional impulse, but a continuous, pervading atmosphere of the radiation of good. She is the wife of John Alden, a lineal descendant of John Alden of the Mayflower.

America's Gravest Problem.

By Secretary of War WILLIAM H. TAFT.

THE problem that I would designate as the GREATEST before the American nation is one which the federal government cannot deal with at all as such and which must be dealt with and solved by the NATIONAL SPIRIT. I AM A LAWYER AND HAVE BEEN A JUDGE AND AS SUCH HAVE HAD AN OPPORTUNITY FOR STUDYING THE PROBLEM, AND I SAY UNHESITATINGLY THAT THE GREATEST QUESTION BEFORE THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC IS THE PERMANENCY AND EFFICIENCY OF THE COURTS IN THE ADMINISTRATION OF LAW, AND ESPECIALLY OF THE CRIMINAL LAW.

This is a GREAT AND IMPORTANT NEED and must be brought about by public opinion and education in the states and cannot be reached by national legislation.

Bring about a condition where the law will be vindicated EVERY TIME and the accused punished or acquitted after a fair trial, and many of the offenses that we now deplore will CEASE and many others that we seek to prevent by other means will become much more rare.

The great number of homicides in this country and the few convictions for murder and manslaughter present A TERRIBLE INDICTMENT AGAINST PUBLIC OPINION. It is an awful tale of the INEFFICIENCY of the administration of the law. I believe the American people can remedy it, for they will in time see the necessity of strengthening the courts and furnishing ample machinery to achieve the general punishment of crime.

Cement's Firm Foothold.

The average American must be surprised to learn that there are enough manufacturers of cement to warrant the holding of an annual convention. But there are a goodly number of them, and they had cause this season to get together and rejoice over the fact that the output is doubling up in volume and the value increasing still faster. People are accustomed to see cement in city sidewalks, in a few walls and buildings, but as compared with wood, iron, brick and natural stone it is so little in evidence that few appreciate the fact that the cement industry is among the most important in the United States.

In point of value of the output, cement now holds the eighth place among the mineral products of the country. It is being used in new and important ways every year. The states of Maryland, New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and Kentucky contain the chief centers of product and manufacture, but there are deposits of the raw materials in other regions. Cement is very heavy, weighing nearly 400 pounds to the barrel, and cannot be made profitably except where the rates of transportation are cheap. The growth of the country and the new demands will doubtless lead to the development of fields hitherto declared impracticable. The extensive use of concrete in buildings will depend upon the relative cheapness of cement. It must compete with brick and wood in the estimates of first cost for a large class of buildings.

LIVED ALL HER LIFE ONE PLACE

Death of Noble Woman Closed a Long and Useful Life

DIED SUNDAY MORNING

Funeral Services of Mrs. Rhoda Lower will be Held Tuesday Morning

Three quarters of a century to live in one place is rather remarkable and yet this is true of Mrs. Rhoda F. Lower, who died at the old homestead, south of this city. Sunday morning at eight o'clock, and yet this was not the real thing that made her noteworthy, but rather the true christian life of hers who lived thus. Deceased was seventy-five years of age at the time of her death. She was the widow of the late John Lower, who died a few months ago. To this union were born four daughters, Mrs. Will Ormes, Mrs. Silvia Dodge, Mrs. Emily Alexander, Mrs. Anna Warfield and one son, Thomas Lower. Mrs. Lower was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church with which she became identified in early life. The funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the late residence, conducted by Rev. J. F. Cowling. The remains will be laid to rest beside those of her husband, in the Ormes cemetery.

WAGE LAWS WERE DISCUSSED TODAY

By Board of Education Which Met With County Superintendent Headlee

The Board of Education, composed of the trustees of Rush county and Superintendent W. O. Headlee, met at Mr. Headlee's office today, the first regular meeting in the New Year.

The meeting was largely taken up in the discussion of the new laws governing the hiring of teachers. County Superintendent Headlee made several recommendations concerning the hiring of the teachers for the next year and suggested that blanks be sent out for teachers to fill and the record of each teacher's training to be published in a booklet.

Mr. Headlee gave as his reason for these booklets to be published, the fact that when a teacher knew his record was to be published for the inspection of patrons, pupils and trustees, it would be an inducement for him to make the best record possible.

NOW FOR A CLEAN CITY IN THE SPRING

Local Company Has Purchased a Compressed Air and Vacuum Cleaning Outfit

The Sanitary House Cleaning Co., a newly organized local company with J. C. Caldwell as manager, will be ready for business bright and early in the spring, and will do as much towards making this a clean city, as any political party that ever held the reins.

They have received one of the latest improved machines for cleaning rugs, carpets, pianos, tapestry curtains, etc., both by the vacuum and compressed air process.

This medium is not only a cleaner but a ferret as well and finds dirt where it is least expected, and never removed by the "manual or old system." For housecleaning, nothing can compare with it for thoroughness.

The company has for territory, Rush and Fayette counties, with headquarters in this city.

TALK OF A NEW CLUB

Married Women Would Organize and do the Thing up Right—Sunset Meetings

Regardless of the soft words of the optimist we are deteriorating in society, and if things continue to backslide we will soon find ourselves in the lap of the wooden butterdish days. It is the unwashed dinner dishes in the many homes in Rushville that we speak of at this time. Why is this thusly, you ask? Sh! Listen! The housewives—scores of them—have the fever. No, no, no, not a typhoid or a malaria, but the roller skating fever, and their pulse is beating fast. It took a long time for the craze to find its way into the Rushville homes, through the rear entrances, where the good housewives were at work; but it did get there—and came with a thud on both feet. Every afternoon at the Kramer rink will be found a number of married women who are learning "the first steps and how to fall gracefully on a smooth surface." They have gone "at it" seriously and are talking of organizing a married women's skating club. And in the meantime, poor hubby—that martyr of all crazes—is obliged to wipe his silverware with a paper napkin, clean his plate with a piece of bread and eat a cold supper off a disorderly table covered with crumbs and "leave-overs."

RUSHVILLE IN THE BIG LEAGUE

A Six Team Affair is Now Being Promoted by Entertaining Fans

GAMES WOULD DRAW WELL

If a New Park Was Fitted up, With Adequate and Comfortable Seating Facilities

With the beginning of the new year the base ball fan turns his thoughts to the coming season and anxiously awaits the umpire's call to "play ball," says the Shelbyville Republican. The big league teams have nearly all selected their men for the coming season, and the minor leagues are awaiting the close of the spring training season to gobble up the cast offs to fill out their teams. There are now more leagues in the country than ever before, and just now the chances are very good for Shelbyville to have a team in one of the nicest little leagues ever formed. During the past two weeks interested parties have been here and secured the consent of the local management to place a team here. The league as proposed will consist of Connersville, Rushville, Greensburg, Shelbyville and possibly the Reserves of Indianapolis and the Shamrocks of Cincinnati.

The league will play only Sundays and holidays. The teams and grounds in Shelbyville, Connersville, Indianapolis and Cincinnati are already assured, and the promoters will try and interest home people in both Greensburg and Rushville. In case this can not be done teams will be placed at these points by outside parties.

The plan as explained by the promoters is a good one and as these men have had considerable base ball experience, it will no doubt be a success. The transportation facilities are excellent and the jump will not be long. It is to be hoped that it will be put through as then the fans would be assured of good attractions and a good article of ball all season.

AMUSEMENTS

"Flirt? No. I mean that you don't flirt; that you are always dreamily occupied with your own affairs, from which listlessly congenial occupation, when drawn, you are so unexpectedly nice that a girl immediately desires to see how nice you can be."

"What a charming indictment you draw!" he said, amused.

"It's a grave one, I assure you. I've been talking about you to Grace Ferrall. I asked to be placed beside you at dinner. I told her I hadn't had half enough of you on the cliff. Now, what do you think of yourself for being too nice to a susceptible girl? I think it's immoral."

They both were laughing now. Several people glanced at them, smiling in sympathy. Alderdene took that opportunity to revert to the sketch, furnishing a specimen of his own inimitable laughter as a running accompaniment to the story of Quarrier and his dog in North Carolina until he had everybody, as usual, laughing, not at the story, but at him, all of which demonstration was bitterly offensive to Quarrier. He turned his eyes once on Miss Landis and on Siward, then dropped them.

The hostess arose. A rustle and flurry of silk and lace and the scraping of chairs, a lingering word or laugh, and the color vanished from the room, leaving a circle of men in black standing around the table.

Here and there a man, lighting a cigarette, bolted his coffee and cognac and strolled out to the gunroom. Ferrall, gesticulating vigorously, resumed his prearranged dog story to Captain Voucher. Belwether buttonholed Alderdene and bored him with an interminably facetious tale until that nobleman, threatened with maxillary dislocation, fairly wrenched himself loose and came over to Siward, squinting furiously.

"Old ass!" he muttered. "His chop whiskers look like the chops of a Southdown ram, and he's got the wits of one. Look here, Stephen, I hear you fell into no end of a scrape in town?"

"Tu quoque, Blinky? Oh, read the newspapers and let it go at that!"

"Just as you like, old chap!" returned his lordship unabashed. "All I meant was—anything Voucher and I can do—of course!"

"You're very good. I'm not dead, you know."

"Not dead, you know!" repeated Major Belwether, coming up behind them with his sprightly step. "That reminds me of a good one!" He sat down and lighted a cigar; then, vainly attempting to control his countenance as though roughly anticipating the treat awaiting them, he began another endless story.

The Page boys, very callow, very much delighted and a little in awe of such a celebrated personage, laughed heartily. And altogether there was sufficient attention and sufficient laughter to make a very respectable noise. This being the major's cue for an exit, he rose, one sleek hand raised in sprightly protest as though to shield the invisible ladies, to whose bourns he was bound, from an uproar too masculine and mighty for the ears of such a sex.

"Ass!" muttered Alderdene, getting up and patting about the room in his big shiny pumps. "Give me a leg—somebody!"

Mortimer swallowed his brandy, fingered, lifted the decanter, mechanically considered its remaining contents and his own capacity, then:

"Bridge, captain?"

"Certainly," said Captain Voucher briskly.

"I'll go and sho the major into the gunroom," observed Ferrall—"unless"—looking questioningly at Siward.

"I've a date with your wife," observed that young man, strolling toward the hall.

The Page boys, Rena Bonnesdel and Eileen Shannon were seated at a card table together, very much engaged with one another, the sealed pack lying neglected on the green cloth, a vast pink box of bonbons beside it not neglected.

O'Hara and Quarrier, with Marion Page and Mrs. Mortimer, were immersed in the game, already stony faced and oblivious to outer sounds.

About the rooms were distributed girls en tete-tete, girls eating bonbons and watching the cards, among them Sylvia Landis, hands loosely clasped behind her, standing at Quarrier's elbow to observe and profit by an expert performance.

As Siward strolled in she raised her faintly head for an instant, smiled in silence and resumed a study of her fiancé's game.

A moment later, when Quarrier had emerged brilliantly from the melee, she looked up again triumphantly, supposing Siward was lingering somewhere waiting to join her. And she was just a trifle surprised and disappointed to find him nowhere in sight. She had wished him to observe the brilliance of Mr. Quarrier's game.

But Siward, outside on the veranda, was saying at that moment to his hostess, "I shall be very glad to read my mother's letter at any time you choose."

"It must be later, Stephen. I'm to cut in when Kemp sends for me. He has a lot of letters to attend to. Tell me, what do you think of Sylvia Landis?"

"I like her, of course," he replied pleasantly.

Grace Ferrall stood thinking a moment. "That sketch you made proved a great success, didn't it?" And she laughed under her breath.

"Did it? I thought Mr. Quarrier seemed annoyed?"

"Really? What a miff that cousin of mine is. He's such a miff, you know, that the very sight of his pointed beard and pompadour hair and his complacency sets me in fidgets to stir him up."

"I don't think you'd best use me for the stick next time," said Siward. "He's not my cousin, you know."

Mrs. Ferrall shrugged her boyish shoulders. "By the way," she said curiously, "who was that girl?"

"What girl?" he asked coolly, looking at his hostess, now the very incarnation of delicate mockery with her pretty laughing mouth, her boyish sunburn and freckles.

"You won't tell me, I suppose?"

"I'm sorry."

"Was she pretty, Stephen?"

"Yes," she said sulkily. "I wish you wouldn't!"

"Nonsense! Do you think I'm going to let you off without some sort of confession? If I had time now—but I haven't. Kemp has business letters. He'll be furious, so I've got to take his cards or we won't have any pennies to buy gasoline."

She retreated backward, with a gay nod of malice, and turned to enter the house and met Sylvia Landis face to face in the hallway.

"You mix!" she whispered. "Aren't you ashamed?"

"Very much, dear. What for?" And, catching sight of Siward outside in the starlight, divined perhaps something of her hostess' meaning, for she laughed uneasily, like a child who winces under a stern eye.

"You don't suppose for a moment," she began, "that I have?"

"Yes, I do. You always do."

"Not with that sort of man," she returned naively. "He won't."

Mrs. Ferrall regarded her suspiciously. "You always pick out exactly the wrong man to play with?"

They had moved back side by side into the hall, the hostess' arm linked in the arm of the younger girl.

"The wrong man?" repeated Sylvia, instinctively freeing her arm, her straight brows beginning to bend inward.

"I didn't mean that—exactly. You know how much I care for his mother—and for him." The obstinate downward trend of the brows, the narrowing blue gaze, signalled mutiny to the woman who knew her so well.

"What is so wrong with Mr. Siward?" she asked.

"Nothing. There was an affair?"

"This spring in town. I know it. Is that all?"

"Yes, for the present," replied Grace Ferrall uncomfortably. Then: "For goodness' sake, Sylvia, don't cross examine me that way! I care a great deal for that boy!"

"So do I. I've made him take my dog."

There was an abrupt pause, and presently Mrs. Ferrall began to laugh. "I mean it, really," said Sylvia quietly. "I like him immensely."

"Dearest, you mean it generously, with your usual exaggeration. You have heard that he has been foolish, and because he's so young, so likable, every instinct, every impulse in you is aroused to—to be nice to him?"

"And if that were true?"

"There is no harm, dear"—Mrs. Ferrall hesitated, her eyes softening to a graver revery. Then looking up, "It's rather pathetic," she said in a low voice. "Kemp thinks he's foredoomed, like all the Siwards. It's an hereditary failing with him—no, it's hereditary damnation. Siward after Siward, generation after generation, you know?"

She bit her lip, thinking a moment. "His grandfather was a friend of my grandparents, brilliant, handsome, generous and—doomed! His own father was found dying in a dreadful resort in London, where he had wandered when stupefied—a Siward! Think of it! So you see what that outbreak of Stephen's means to those whose families have been New Yorkers since New York was. It is ominous, it is more than ominous. It means that the master vice has seized on one more Siward. But I shall never, never admit it to his mother."

Mrs. Kemp Ferrall.

The younger girl sat, wide eyed, silent. The elder's gaze was upon her, but her thoughts, remote, centered on the hapless mother of such a son.

"Such indulgence was once fashionable. Moderation is the present fashion. Perhaps he will fall into line," said Mrs. Ferrall thoughtfully. "The main thing is to keep him among people, not to drop him. The gregarious may be shamed, but if anything, any incident happens to drive him outside by himself, if he should become solitary, there's not a chance in the world for him. It's a pity. I know he meant to make himself the exception to the rule—and look! Already one carouse of his has landed him in the daily papers!"

Sylvia flushed and looked up. "Grace, may I ask you a question?"

"Yes, child," she answered absently.

"Has it occurred to you that what you have said about this boy touches me very closely?"

Mrs. Ferrall's wits returned nimbly from woolgathering, and she shot a startled, inquiring glance at the girl beside her.

"You—you mean the matter of heredity, Sylvia?"

"Yes, I think my uncle, Major Belwether, chose you as his august mouthpiece for that little sermon on the dangers of heredity—the danger of being ignorant concerning what women of my race had done—before I came into the world they found so amusing."

"I told you several things," returned Mrs. Ferrall composedly. "Your uncle thought it best for you to know."

"Yes, There was, if I understood you, enough of divorce, of general indiscretion and irregularity to seriously complicate any family tree and coat of arms I might care to claim!"

"Sylvia!"

The girl lifted her pretty bare shoulders. "I'm sorry, but could I help it? Very well; all I can do is to prove a decent exception. Very well; I'm doing it, am I not—practically scared into the first solidly suitable marriage offered, seizing the unfortunate Howard with both hands for fear he'd get away and leave me alone with only a queer family record for company? Very well! Now, then, I want to ask you why everybody in my case didn't go about with a sanctimonious face and a dolorous mien repeating: 'Her grandmother eloped! Her mother ran away! Poor child; she's doomed, doomed!'"

"Sylvia, I—"

"Yes; why didn't they? That's the way they talk about that boy out there." She swept a rounded arm toward the veranda.

"Yes, but he has already broken loose, while you—"

"So did I—nearly. Had it not been for you, you know well enough I might have run away with that dreadful Englishman at Newport, for I adored him—I did, I did, and you know it. And look at my endless escapes from compromising myself! Can you count them? All those indiscretions when mere living seemed to intoxicate me that first winter, and only my uncle and you to break me in!"

"In other words," said Mrs. Ferrall slowly, "you don't think Mr. Siward is getting what is known as a square deal?"

"No, I don't. Major Belwether has already hinted—no, not even that, but has somehow managed to dampen my pleasure in Mr. Siward."

Mrs. Ferrall considered the girl beside her, now very lovely and flushed in her suppressed excitement.

"After all," she said, "you are going to marry somebody else. So why become quite so animated about a man you may never again see?"

"I shall see him if I desire to."

"Oh!"

"I am not taking the black veil, am I?" asked the girl hotly.

"Only the wedding veil, dear. But, after all, your husband ought to have something to suggest concerning a common visiting list!"

"He may suggest, certainly. In the meantime I shall be loyal to my own friends and afterward, too," she murmured to herself as her hostess rose, calmly dropping care like a mantle from her shoulders.

NEWS OF INDIANA

Two Whitecappers Convicted.
Columbus, Ind., Jan. 6.—After being out nineteen and a half hours the jury in the case of the State of Indiana against David Fox and others, charged with whitecapping, returned a verdict finding David Fox and Jacob Kirk guilty of whitecapping William Thomas Vanest, the South Bethany blacksmith, on the night of June 22. No finding was made against the four other defendants. After being told that they were sentenced to the Michigan City prison for from two to fourteen years, the convicted men were informed that they were in the custody of the Bartholomew county sheriff, and they were at once placed in jail.

Bluff Wager Leads to Death.
South Bend, Ind., Jan. 6.—Because Antoni Cencelowski called a bluff wager made by Nickodem Witucki, the two fought a duel with revolvers. The former was instantly killed and the latter is now thought to be dying. After both had fallen severely wounded Witucki grabbed his rival by the throat, and, placing the revolver against Cencelowski's head, sent the fatal bullet crashing into his brain.

Bilboquet Replacing Diabolo.
Paris went daff over diabolo, the trick of balancing a sort of top on a string attached to two slender sticks, and all the world tried to follow Paris' lead, although America didn't succeed very well, says the New York Press. How high one could throw the top and catch it on the cord was a vital question in a few places in the United States not only with children, but with many of their elders, who found that diabolo playing was not as easy as it looked and that to spin that double cone to a height of thirty or forty feet one had to have quick eyes and steady hands. Now word comes from Paris that bilboquet threatens to unseat diabolo. Bilboquet is nothing but a complicated form of cup and ball.

RIOTERS RETREAT

Presence of the State Guard in Muncie to Much For Trouble Makers.

WELCOMED BY OFFICERS

The Mayor and Other Officials of the City Were Mighty Glad to See the Boys in Blue.

City Authorities Were Practically Worn Out by Days of Ceaseless Vigilance.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 6.—It was with a feeling of the greatest relief that the mayor and the other city officials welcomed the state troops, even though their coming was attended by a proclamation of the governor declaring the city under martial law. Since the first morning of the new year they had been working practically all night and all day, and they had almost come to the point where physical exhaustion would claim them, as it did the special policemen.

Not one arrest made Saturday by the police had any connection with the strike situation. Several liquor sellers who dared disobey the proclamation of Mayor Guthrie ordering the saloons closed indefinitely were loaded into the patrol and hauled down to the station house, but outbreaks on the part of strike sympathizers failed to come, even though they were expected by the civil and military authorities.

Governor Hanly's proclamation declaring Muncie to be under martial law made little change in the conduct of affairs in the city. The usual custom of placing the city's affairs, both municipal and business, under absolute control of the military forces was not followed, but what the soldiers term the "second degree" martial law was effected. This means the civil and military authorities are working together with the commanding officer of the troops, having the power to go above the civil officer's orders if he deems it wise. The conduct of business is going on in Muncie as usual while the troops are here, although merchants are having little trade. The soldiers will keep the streets clear of loiterers at all times and will be particularly vigilant along this line after night. Groups of men will not be allowed to form at any point in the city at any time.

Governor Hanly's proclamation declaring martial law explained at length the conditions leading up to the call for troops and the purpose of the state in sending troops into the city. The governor in his message says since the city is in a state of riot and lawless insurrection, causing frequent breaches of the peace and the destruction of property and injury to citizens, he has been led to proclaim martial law for the city and the territory adjacent thereto within a distance of four miles from the court house.

With the proclamation of the governor declaring martial law staring them in the face and 600 state troops camped in the very heart of the city, the rioters of Muncie, quieted down. The outbreaks of the three days preceding gave way to a normal existence so far as violence is concerned, although the city is far from normal in a business and industrial sense. With the arrival of the militia evidences of mob rule passed away and the trouble makers kept close to home. Frightened special officers these fellows jeer and hoot, but stern-faced, blueclad soldiers carrying rifles and wearing revolvers, they respect submissively. City cars are again running on a fair schedule under proper guard. The state troops will take no part in guarding the strike breakers until trouble arises. The cars are accompanied by deputy sheriffs and special officers, but the soldiers are in reserve ready to respond to the first call for assistance.

General McKee called upon the citizens to assist the officers in putting down trouble, ordered all saloons closed until further orders, assigned all police officers permission to carry arms and promised protection for the property and persons of all law-abiding citizens.

If you want a good Colt, go to Root's Sale.

Tonight at the Vaude theatre "A Tale of the Sea" and "A Tail of a Mouse" will be shown. Both of these pictures are worth seeing. The first is a very interesting story of a man who being out of work answers an ad in the paper for a sailor; he accepts, goes aboard and in an argument over a phonograph starts a fight; he is bound and put in the hole of the ship, where the cabin boy releases him and they leave together; are stranded on an island, where cannibals, after capturing them are surprised by the phonograph and the two escape returning home to find that the sailor is the proud father of a bouncing boy.

"A Tail of a Mouse" is a very funny picture and shows the killing of a cute little mouse after causing no end of trouble.

Miss Blanch Wrennick will sing "Songs My Mother Sang."

The Grand theatre will present tonight only a rip-roaring laughing bill entitled: "The Strong Man," "His First Row," and "Thirteen at Table." Many very comical situations are presented in this bill of a different class from anything shown previously.

Miss Brown will sing a new song, "On Bunker Hill where Warren Fell."

AN OFFICIAL JOURNAL

Hobson Wants Government to Print National Newspaper.

TO BE STRICTLY NONPARTISAN

Hero of the Merrimac Plans a Journal to Be Issued Periodically and to Summarize Government Work—Different Editions For Each Section—No Editorial Comment.

Representative Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama, the hero of the Merrimac, has prepared a bill for the periodical issue of an official journal which shall contain brief notices of the work of the various departments and bureaus of the government, of the supreme court and of congress, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York World. Mr. Hobson said the other day:

"The official journal is intended to make a connecting link between the government and the people. The project grew out of my work with the agricultural department. I found that a vast amount of most valuable material did not reach the people. My first movement was to take this material to the people of my district, the Sixth Alabama, by a campaign in which representatives of the agricultural department made short talks. The result was like an awakening. Property values advanced appreciably, especially timber lands, and an era of improved agriculture has begun in this district.

"I found that all the departments of the government were issuing publications giving the results of their work, between 150 and 200 all told, yet the vast bulk of the people were not being reached. I believe that the proposed journal will create renewed interest and confidence among the masses in governmental affairs. It will be strictly nonpartisan and without editorial comment. It cannot help but add the press of the country, not only in furnishing a ready index, but also in creating a taste and demand for reading matter and for additional information upon important subjects.

"It is intended that the issues going to industrial sections shall be somewhat different from the editions going to agricultural sections and that the editions for the cotton states shall be somewhat different from those going to the grain states, so that each section of the country may get most information upon the subject in which it is chiefly concerned.

"The control of the journal is to be vested in a joint committee independent of any influence. It is intended that during the sessions of congress the journal shall be double the size of the issues between sessions. The former will have sixteen pages, the latter eight. Although all details are left to the joint committee, it is expected that the journal will be issued weekly, but it may be semi-weekly or even appear at shorter intervals if found necessary.

"The present estimates contemplate allowing each congressman and senator to furnish the names of 15,000 recipients of the journal. There will be additional copies, and all told about 1,500,000 families will receive the journal free. The postoffice department will handle the copies in blocks, through the carriers, thus saving the expense of addressing, the postmasters and rural carriers keeping lists of the recipients."

The sum of $75,000 is appropriated by the bill for equipment and $275,000 for the expense of issuing the publication.

It is Mr. Hobson's idea to have a staff of trained newspaper men to handle the news which is sent in by the various departments. Just how the bill will be received cannot be hazarded, but Mr. Hobson has made inquiry and finds that most of the department officials are in favor of it.

CRUSADE AGAINST TRAMPS.

Posters to Scare Hoboes Away Carry a Terrible Warning.

The Los Angeles (Cal.) police have inaugurated a crusade against the tramps who are infesting Los Angeles that will make all previous efforts seem insignificant, says the New York Herald. Thousands of posters are to be put up along the railway lines between Los Angeles and the desert warning all hoboes that the police are waiting for them and that they will be put to work as soon as they arrive there.

The posters are worded as follows: "Hoboes, keep moving. Rent is high and food is scarce. Taxpayers will not support you. Long sentences in the chain gang given here. Sixty to ninety days our specialty."

The idea originated with Marshal Anderson of Yuma, Ariz., who found the scheme worked successfully.

Novel Experiment With a Rat.

In Seattle's fight against the spread of the bubonic plague by rats an interesting experiment was made recently, says the New York Tribune. A rodent was dyed blue and turned loose to find out just how long it could retain its liberty and how far it could travel without falling into one of the myriad of public and private traps set for the plague distributors. The particular rat selected for the test was caught a week after being turned out a mile from the point where it was liberated. In one week later 2,025 rats were received by the health department, of which 1,529 were paid for at the rate of 10 cents each. The total number of rats brought in since the plague campaign started is 15,831.

PROHIBITION'S "DIXIE."

A Twentieth Century Rendition of "Marching Through Georgia."

Prohibition in Georgia has drawn from some unnamed prohibitionist the following "Marching Through Georgia," which, it is suggested, may be sung to the tune of "Dixie," says the New York Post:

Bring the good old bugle, boys! We'll have a grand new song; Sing it as we mean to sing it, eighty millions strong; Sing it as we love to sing it while they march along— Rumshaps are marching from Georgia!

Hurrah, hurrah, they lead the jubilee! Hurrah, hurrah, our land will soon be free!

Hear the Dixie chorus, from Atlanta to the sea, While they are marching from Georgia!

Oklahoma answered when she heard the joyful sound:

Kansas took new courage, while old Maine felt sure her ground.

All the south awakens, and the north will soon come round.

Swelling the new march from Georgia.

Hurrah, hurrah, we'll vote the jubilee! Hurrah, hurrah, Columbia shall be free!

Swell the Dixie chorus, from the mountains to the sea— America is proud to follow Georgia.

Maryland Prohibitionists, not to be outdone, furnish this battle song, which, the party's press bureau assures the public, has just been "dashed off" by one of the workers:

We have a foe we mean to fight In Maryland—my Maryland. An enemy to God and right In Maryland—my Maryland. Arise, ye people; take your stand And work together, hand in hand, For God and home and native land In Maryland—my Maryland.

Of Oklahoma we are proud. She sets the pace for Maryland. Then why should rumshaps be allowed In Maryland—my Maryland? The southern states are doing well, And Delaware now breaks the spell. What we will do time will soon tell In Maryland—my Maryland.

The legislature soon to meet In Maryland—my Maryland. The people's will must not defeat In Maryland—my Maryland. This mighty question must be solved; There is a principle involved— Saloons must go, we have resolved, In Maryland—my Maryland.

Rumshaps are destined soon to go In Maryland—my Maryland. Good, thinking people will it so In Maryland—my Maryland. Arise, ye people, in your might, For God is on the side of right, And he will help us win this fight In Maryland—my Maryland.

TIES FROM FOREIGN CLIMES.

Railroad Looks Far Ahead For Its Future Supply.

"When an American railroad company looks so far ahead and so far away as to provide for its future supply of cross ties from forests in lands across the sea and at the ends of the earth," said a lumber operator to a representative of the Washington Star, "the seriousness of the railroad tie problem may be imagined. This is what the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe is doing.

"Some time ago this company sent E. O. Faulkner, the head of its tie and timber department, to investigate the statements that had been made about timber growing on the Hawaiian Islands known as ohia wood and which is being cut away rapidly to clear up land for sugar plantations.

"The wood was found by him to answer so well all the requirements of a good and lasting tie that he signed a contract with a Hawaiian lumber company for the cutting and delivery at San Francisco of 500,000 ohia wood ties a year for five years, besides 500 sets of switch ties for each year for the same period.

"Mr. Faulkner went also to Japan, where he made arrangements to procure several millions of ties to be delivered as called for. These will be made from an oak which grows abundantly in that country and which has all the qualities which made our white oak so valuable for railroad ties.

"Further providing for contingencies in the supply of ties, the Santa Fe has purchased several thousands of acres of forest land in Australia, the possibilities of which for furnishing ties are said to be virtually unlimited."

QUICKSAND ARCH ERECTION.

Remarkable Feat of Engineering Under New York Streets.

What is regarded by engineers as one of the most wonderful achievements ever undertaken in subterranean construction is nearing completion in the McAdoo tunnel beneath the junction of Sixth avenue and Ninth street, in New York, says the Kansas City Star. At that point four tunnels come together. Overhead are the Sixth avenue and Ninth street surface roads and a few city cars. Under the streets, Charles M. Jacobs, chief engineer of the Hudson company, has been building by compressed air at the point where the tunnels come together. The arch is of quicksand, and it is supposed to make this sixty-eight foot quicksand arch permanent with concrete, and when this has been done it will sustain the tremendous weight of the street overhead, with its great volume of "L" and surface car and vehicle traffic.

Trembling Necklace That's a Dazzler.

Rivalry in the display of diamonds at the grand opera in New York has led to the invention by a New York jeweler of a "trembling necklace," guaranteed to outshine any other arrangement of precious stones, says the New York American. The "trembling necklaces" are so named because the diamond settings are attached to tiny pieces of flexible silver wire so that the diamonds vibrate at the slightest movement of the wearer. The effect is dazzling.

LAND AND SKY CRAFT

H. B. Schiller Hopes to Soar In An Aero Auto Boat.

WATER IS USED AS BALLAST.

Both Balloon and Aeroplane Principles Included In Philadelphia Inventor's Ship—Power Driven Propeller Is to Make It Travel—Will Enter Craft In Government Competition.

Harry B. Schiller of Philadelphia is an inventor of airships and of one in particular, which he calls an aero auto boat. Such interest has this "boat" aroused that Mr. Schiller has been asked by the government to enter a competition for aerial craft to be held at Washington on Jan. 15. The most practicable of the plans submitted in this competition will be carried out at government expense, and several airships will be built for a series of trials to be held at Fort Meade, Virginia.

In describing his aero auto car Mr. Schiller said recently to a representative of the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

"I have held, with many other aeronauts, that no successful airship could be built lighter than air. I therefore do not depend on the balloon to carry me through the air. At the same time I cannot see how an aeroplane will ever be serviceable as a passenger carrier. I have therefore combined the two principles, the aeroplane and the balloon, in my ship. Beneath a V shaped deck or aeroplane two balloons are fastened. They are cigar shaped and are connected so that, when one loses gas, gas from the other can flow into it, thus keeping the balloon of the same size. The balloons are attached to the deck or aeroplane by aluminum rigging. Halfway down the side of each balloon another deck or aeroplane extends.

"The balloons are only large enough to counteract gravity, so that the ship can be raised from the ground by one's hands. The decks or aeroplanes can be extended three times their width. In case the balloons should lose all their gas the aeroplanes would be able to support the ship with the aid of the propeller.

"The propeller is, of course, at the rear of the ship and extends from a cabin underneath the balloon. Upon it I depend for the motive power of the ship. With the aid of a rudder which is able to move up and down as well as sideways the propeller can force the ship through the air in any direction, whether up or down or starboard or port. The rudder is placed directly above the propeller.

"The cabin just referred to is a box lying directly below the balloons. It is large enough to hold an engine room and leave space for several men. It is entirely air tight. This will enable ascents into higher regions of the air, where the cold and rarity of the atmosphere would be too much for the occupants of an open basket. Four wheels are attached to the bottom of this cabin, and thus the whole boat can be moved on the ground as an automobile. These wheels are also to ease the force of the descent.

"I have invented several little things which add to the serviceability of the aero auto boat. Inside each balloon I have placed a smaller bag filled with air. As the gas in the balloon expands the air is driven out of these little air bags and the gas takes up the room occupied by the air. This prevents the loss of gas, which always is necessitated in ordinary balloons when a high altitude is reached. My ballast is water and is contained in four aluminum tubes which support the cabin of the boat. These tubes are connected so that the level of the water remains the same in all.

"The dimensions of the balloon I am planning for the competition at Washington are as follows: Height of balloon, 20 feet; height of cabin, 10 feet; total height of aero auto car, 30 feet; total length, 90 feet. The rudder will be about one-third the total length of the ship.

"The whole thing is very simple. Underneath the aeroplane or deck are the two balloons resting side by side, and attached to the balloons is the box or cab."

Mr. Schiller is a globe trotter, having been around the world three times. He was born in 1865 in Allentown and moved to Germany with his parents at the age of five. When seventeen years old he returned to the United States. He served in the Spanish-American war in the quartermaster's department of the army. While on board the ship Port Victor, now the McClellan, which was carrying 800 men to the front, he discovered an infernal machine which had been placed on board and threw it into the water in time to save the lives of the 800 soldiers. He has been engaged in the study of balloons for twenty years and has patented an aerial torpedo boat which is an adaptation of his aerial auto boat.

Clever Ruse to Catch Water Tappers.

Wily householders who tapped pipes carrying hot water through their houses from the plant of the Atlantic City Hot Water Heating company caused losses of thousands of gallons of water to the company during the past month, says the New York World. Failing to round up the thieves, a brilliant manager of the concern turned harmless coloring matter into the water circuit, and several of the foxy tappers are reported to have been tinted a beautiful blue during their morning bath.

THOMAS WRITES FROM PANAMA

Say People in the States Have Erroneous Idea About Prices of Things There

MEALS FOR THIRTY CENTS

And Government Provides Comfortable Sleeping Rooms with Light and Bath

San Pablo, C. Z., Dec. 25th, 1907. Editor Republican:

I have endeavored to write you about things of which but little is seen in the public press and also cover some of the inquiries made of me. I have upon my table questions as to the expense of living and what we have to eat. These are very pertinent questions and about which many erroneous ideas have been formed, naturally, however, because of the long distance from the source of supply. At the risk of being tiresome to your readers I will detail the cost of some items going to make up the expense account of which you may use as much as you deem of public interest.

The government provides clean and neatly furnished rooms with light and baths. Good meals are provided at thirty cents each, which together with the laundry, amounts to about thirty-five dollars per month. The laundry is quite an item of expense here. After wages amount to the value of a commissary coupon books one can be procured and the cost is deducted from wages. Provisions cost about the same as they do in the States.

It will at once occur to the reader that these prices are very reasonable. Men with families can live cheaper per head than single men.

At the hotel on Thanksgiving day we had turkey, vegetables, fruits, berries, ice cream and all the appetizing things that go to make up a Thanksgiving dinner. Today we dinner of like character. The dining room was most tastefully decorated with palms and tropical plants with which was entwined the grand old banner—the stars and stripes. The weather is more like the Fourth of July in the States than Christmas.

Yet, notwithstanding these pleasant environments on this day, my thoughts turn to the dear ones at home with a longing to be with and participate in their greetings for "Mid pleasures and palaces, though we may roam, Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

Most Respectfully Yours
WALTER H. THOMAS.

You Have Tried the Rest, Now Try the Best

For three years of close attention to business and the right treatment to all, we have made a steady gain in the confidence of the people and increase in business. Stores are like men—usually those succeed who deserve success—and no business depends so much on the confidence of the public as that of Druggist. It should be so. The business lives so close to the health and lives of the people that there should be no doubt as to the reliability of goods, or as to the skill and accuracy of the druggist, and trust we may enjoy the confidence of the public for years to come.

REASON WHY: It shall always be our desire to please and keep stock in every way suited to the needs of the community—THE BEST OF EVERYTHING and plenty of it—at the right price. We positively will not substitute, and everyone connected with the store is a Registered Pharmacist. Wishing you a prosperous 1908, we are Very truly yours,
